By having continuous access to the same set of effective medications, including psychotropic medications, individuals are more likely to maintain mental wellness and be successful transitioning between the criminal justice or juvenile justice system and mental health service providers. The intent is to strengthen medication consistency across settings in the City through the following efforts: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Goal 1: Establishing an agreed upon medication formulary</li> <li>Goal 2: Decreasing overall costs of treatment through a cooperative purchasing agreement</li> <li>Goal 3: Leverage an existing platform facilitating data sharing so that community-based health providers and the jail's behavioral and physical health provider can access patient critical health information.</li> </ul> The Integrated Health Network (IHN) is working alongside the United Way of Greater St. Louis and the Regional Data Alliance to build a regional Community Information Exchange (CIE). UniteUs has been engaged to build and integrate the technology that will be used in the information exchange. The presenters will provide an update on the work occurring on this initiative including efforts to implement a regional CIE.	Debbie Allen Mikel Whitter	30
School-based Health Clinics  Approximately 65% of the incarcerated population are diagnosed with a mental health problem, and 70% with a history of substance used disorder. Many were unable to access appropriate care in the community because of lack of treatment capacity, and financial barriers to treatment. By the time these individuals are entangled in the criminal justice system, they often present with a myriad of co-morbid conditions. And, while there are earnest efforts occurring in the City to insert healthcare as a role at each juncture of the criminal justice system: (1) law enforcement/emergency services; (2) initial detention/initial court hearings; (3) jails/courts; (4) re-entry; and (5) community corrections/support, the challenge and opportunity remain, however, with limited community capacity to treat individuals, long inpatient wait lists, and uninsured individuals’ inability to access care. It is the stated goal of the CJCC to advocate for the implementation of School-based Health Clinics (SBHC) in key areas of the City. SBHC can serve to reach individuals getting them the support they need so they are not pushed into the criminal justice pipeline. Work toward health equity requires health care delivery mechanisms that take on dual roles: mitigating the health effects of a maladaptive social ecosystem while simultaneously working to improve the ecosystem itself. School-based health centers (SBHCs) perform these dual roles by providing medical, mental/behavioral, dental, and vision care directly in schools where young people spend most of their time, maximizing their opportunity to learn and grow.	Debbie Allen	20
